INDIAN DEPREDATIONS—MEASURES FOR RETALIATION

BAKER CITY, July 8th, 1866

EDITOR OREGONIAN

There are some matters transpiring here deserving the attention of the military authorities The Indians made a raid upon a portion of this valley about two weeks since and drove off ten head of horses Two days after, their trail was found and followed by twelve men for three days when six of the party turned back on account of being short of provisions for the whole party The other six trailed the Indians to the neighborhood of Harney Lake, where they came upon an encampment of about eighty warriors and many squaws and children They report that the Indians had a large band of stock horses and mules, and they were so near that they recognized the horses last stolen They immediately returned, and since their arrival here, have been enlisting, mounting and equipping a company to go against the Indians They will camp near Auburn to night and to morrow, the company from eighty to a hundred strong will march for the Indian country, determined if possible to exterminate the whole band and to recapture the stock I understand the men have elected as their Captain, a man by the name of Estes who is well versed in Indian warfare Each man has signed an agreement to obey the officers' orders. All stock captured, unless proven by owners, will be sold in thirty days at public auction, the proceeds to go to the benefit of the company

Indians are seen almost daily in this vicinity Last Friday night, they came again into the valley and drove away eight horses Our people stand much in need of assistance from the Government, and they need it right away. We suppose the military officials have been somewhat embarrassed for want of men and means, but since Congress has provided for the reorganization of the army, we pray that action in our behalf may be speedy. If we are not to have protection furnished us, give us the arms and we will protect ourselves and take no prisoners

THE MINES

I recently paid a visit to the Eagle Creek mines The quartz mill is doing well in crushing rock from the Knight Lode New discoveries are being made daily The placer mines are being worked with success Mr Glover, of Mormon Basin, picked up in his claim last week a nugget weighing the handsome sum of six hundred dollars

FARMING

Grain in the valley looks well. On Burnt River everything in the way of vegetation, has been devoured by the crickets Some few swarms have visited portions of this valley, but so far, have done but little harm. Yours truly,

NO. 1.

The New Flying Ship—Another Voyage Among the Clouds

The flying ship of Prof Andrews, of New York, made her second experimental trip on the 6th of June The Professor was accompanied by the well known aeronaute, Mr. Plumb, No material change had been made in the construction of the Aereon, except in the substitution of a larger rudder than the one used at first In addition to the gentleman named, the car contained four hundred pounds of ballast The Aereon raised rapidly, but, as on the first trial, the steering tackle became entangled with other cordage, and the rudder being held firmly at right angles with the plain of the aerostold, the vessel was unmanageable and drifted with the wind. As soon as the rudder tackle was relieved from its embarrassment, Professor Andrews brought her head to the wind, and elevating the bow by moving with his companion to the rear of the car, the Aereon moved upon the back track at an angle of about forty-four degrees, passing almost directly over her starting point. The wind at this time, was blowing gently N. N E. The bow was now returned in that direction, and headway was made for several miles against the current. When at an elevation of 1,200 or 1,500 feet, the gas in the aerostatic expanded so as to press the silk firmly against the netting and deprive the hand used to depress the upper surface of its power in that respect This resulted in the failure of all future efforts of the aeronaute to tilt either end of the aerostatic, and their being once again at the mercy of the wind, which, luckily for them, blew gently. At an elevation of 6,000 feet, which they had attained in about twenty minutes, they found themselves in atmosphere of perfect calm. Underneath them filmy clouds floated in a direction contrary to that in which they had been going; this was the current through which they had just passed. Overhead there was still another current, bearing light fleecy clouds slowly onward. Down toward the eastern horizon great banks of clouds lay piled, one above the other, like mountainous drifts of snow, unfathomable and apparently of endless extent. These Dr. Andrews describes as being of wonderful, and from their immensity, of awe inspiring beauty. At this time owing to the drifting clouds below, the earth was only visible now and then; but even this imperfect observation enabled the aeronauts to see that, contrary to their expectations, they were still moving toward the northeast, while the clouds below them were moving south southwest. The valve was now opened, and a descent of 2,000 feet effected, and the stratum of cloud passed through, showing the voyagers the waters of the Sound beneath them. At first, doubtful of their ability to control the vessel, having, as stated, found that they had lost the tilting power in the upper region, they concluded to cross the Sound, and land somewhere beyond it On making further experiment, however, they found that with the escape of the gas just made, the vessel had recovered somewhat of its statues on the upper surface, and that she was now more manageable In proof of this her head was turned homeward again, and more gas emitted, when, to the satisfaction of the voyagers, she slowly descended on an incline plane in the island's direction.

The descent was easily accomplished, though at a long distance from the starting point Although not perfectly satisfied with the result of his trip—as he hoped to be able to return in his ship, not in a wagon—the Doctor is satisfied so far that he has proved to himself, at least, that he has got hold of the right principle at last, and that aerial navigation is no longer a myth, however many the sceptics as to its practicability there may be He sets to work at once in the construction of a new car 50 feet long, that he said lately was but 12 Thus, he states will give him complete control over the aerostatic, as by moving from end to end of the car he can alter the centre of gravity at will, and so elevate or depress the bow of his ship This, he urges, is all that he now wants to enable him to prove to the world that he has discovered that gravitation is the sole motive power necessary for the navigation of the air, and that the means to control are so simplified that the scientific men of this progressive day will be ashamed to find that the solution of the problem was all the time within their reach. Professor Andrews claims to have no ambition beyond the confirmation of the principle involved in these experiments This done, he says, he leaves to others to work out to their perfection the glorious results which must inevitably follow the establishment of his theory

A CANDID REBEL.—A Nashville paper reports a conversation between a Mississippi planter and a rebel soldier, regarding the passage, by the Legislature of Tennessee, of a bill disfranchising those who had been active in the rebellion The planter was very full of wrath because of this legislation, but the soldier said

I can't blame the Legislature for acting as it did. It did nothing but what we intended to do had we won the fight in place of the Yankees. If we had held Tennessee we would not have allowed Union men to vote or hold office, and there is no sense in my abusing others for doing to me what I had fully determined to do to them had circumstances been different I don't deny that it is pretty rough to be denied a vote, but still it is the fate of war, and I know that we Confederates were determined to disfranchise all who were against us We have no business at all to complain

PACIFIC COAST MATTERS

THE SPECIAL MAIL AGENCY

You have probably heard by telegraph that Quincy A. Brooks has been appointed Special Agent of the Postoffice Department for the Pacific Coast, in place of Gaskell Brooks had been for some months, filling a similar position in Oregon and in Washington Territory, where he has given evidence of superior fitness for the duties of the place Mr Gaskill's removal was a forgone conclusion from the time of his temporary arrangement with the California Stage Company, for the transportation of the mails between Lincoln, California, and Portland, Oregon, at a rate of compensation exceeding $400,000 per annum, when a few days after this arrangement was abrogated and a new one effected with the same Company at the rate of $300,000 per annum The Department naturally doubted the efficiency, to say the least, of a Special Agent who made such bad bargains but postponed action until the Special Agent sent to California lost fail to investigate this and other transactions should have made a report This done Mr Conness was informed that a change in the Special Agency had been definitely determined upon, and the senator accordingly telegraphed to Gaskill to "resign," which he did—writing Fast in regard to the subject as follows "Not knowing on earth what it meant, or what to think of it

The Daily Oregonian.

SPECIAL PAPER OF THE STATE.

TUESDAY MORNING, JULY 17, 1866.

Guarantees by One, Guarantees by All.

In Rousseau's speech on reconstruction during which occurred the hostile passage with Grinnell of Iowa, the Kentucky right-bower of Johnson, took up the usual copperhead line of argument and said in substance:

"Look, what do you want with guarantees from the insurrectionary States? What right has the nation to ask guarantees from a portion of the people? A guarantee, to be worth anything, and mean anything, ought to be binding on all the people and all the States alike. I deny the right to demand of Massachusetts guarantees which are not demanded of South Carolina, and once accept the basis that a guarantee, to be binding at all, ought to be binding upon the whole people of the United States."

This is precisely the way in which the copperheads put the matter. Without saying in direct terms that the constitutional amendment, (for that was what Rousseau was talking about,) is designed to bind only the lately rebel States, it is said by way of direct implication. Rousseau's speech was designed not to affect Congress or reading, intelligent men, but the ignorant and unthinking portions of his constituency. The copperhead harangues and newspaper articles of the same tenor, are published to influence the same classes. They ask with a flourish of injury and indignation, "What right has the nation to ask guarantees from a portion of the people!" As much as to say, "such guarantees are asked of one State and not of another." It is true that the lately rebel States taught the nation the necessity of guarantees; but that the guarantees embodied in the constitutional amendment are intended to bind one State and not another, is not true. There is not a provision in the constitution which is not applicable to one State as much as to another while all remain in their normal relations with each other under the constitution. The guarantee required of South Carolina in relation to the non-payment of the rebel debt, in the very nature of a constitutional provision, is just as binding on Oregon or any other State. The constitution binds all the States in the same degree.

The section disfranchising leading rebels, cannot operate in Georgia and be null and void in Maine. If any citizen of any State along the border of Canada, acted in the capacity of a rebel, such as is described in the amendment, he cannot hereafter enjoy the honors of office any more than can his brother officer who led guerrillas in the butchering business in Arkansas. And so of every other guarantee asked for in the constitutional amendment.

The amendment is not offered for adoption by the insurrectionary States only, but is offered to all the States; and should every one of the eleven rebel States adopt it, it must yet receive the sanction of sixteen loyal States before it could become a part of the constitution. Can it be said by anybody that the amendment is not to bind those sixteen States? Or can it be said that the amendment is only to bind such States as sanction it? By no means. It must bind all whenever, and as much sooner as it binds one. Not only this, but it must bind all in the future as well as in relation to the present, and may operate just as well to prevent future rebellion in one section as another. All this talk by Rousseau and the Copperheads about discriminations against the insurrectionary States, is the sheerest sort of dishonest sophistry.

Renounced the Name.

They are going to have a "National Union Johnson Convention" at Philadelphia. The Convention is to be composed of Democrats. Yet it is not to be a Democratic Convention. Oh no! That party in despair of gaining a victory under the old name, has renounced it. It is to be called the "National Union Johnson" party hereafter. The Democratic Senators and Representatives in Congress have endorsed the call for a Convention. Vallandigham is in favor of it. So is Seymour. And the Woods, Ben. and Fernando. The city of Brotherly Love is chosen very appropriately as the place where the Convention is to be held and the new party christened. Andrew Johnson will probably be the bantling's god-father, as it is to take his name; while Jeff. Davis, appropriately clad in the toggery in which he was captured, will be honored as its god-mother. Or in the event of its proper god-mother being absent, James Buchanan will probably be assigned to that place of honor.

So if we are to believe appearances, the name of Democracy is to be abandoned and go into desuetude. There occurs now and then to us an indistinct recollection of having once heard that the name was destined to be unchangeable and eternal. But though time has not yet quite expired, it fails out that the imperishable name is to be renounced and the immutable appellation changed. The Democratic party that was is seized with a new idea. It is going to verify the sentiment expressed by Pope:

"Manners with fortunes, humors turn with climes, Tenets with books and principles with times."

It was time long ago for the party to have sought a new name. But how the change that has been resolved upon can be reconciled with the "eternal principles," is a question of some difficulty. Perhaps some of the "National Union Johnson" journals of this State will explain.

SPARE US.—During the last two weeks our office has been quite overwhelmed with the multitude of reports of Fourth of July proceedings, orations, etc., received from all quarters. We make no doubt that every community would like to see an account of its Fourth of July doings in print; but it is impossible for us to gratify them. The reports we receive are usually about a column in length, and were we to give all of them a place, we should have no room left. Some of the orations sent to us possess merit; but if we were to publish them they would not be generally read. Each of them would probably find a few readers in the community where it was delivered, but would be noticed no further. A piece of composition three or four columns long, must be a performance of extraordinary power and ability to obtain any great number of readers. We are glad to be remembered by our friends throughout the the State, but must beg to excuse ourselves from publishing the reams of Fourth of July matter which we have received. We beg our friends to send us news items, and information of general interest, and it will always obtain a place in the OREGONIAN.

CAUGHT A TARTAR.—In one of the Philadelphia wards a meeting of Republicans was called to organize a "Johnson Union Club." To the great surprise of the managers the friends of "my policy" were overwhelmingly voted down. To add to their discomfiture resolutions of this sort were adopted:

Resolved, That the conduct of certain smock-faced Republicans, who would sell their birthright for a mess of pottage to obtain a share of the public plunder, and to cast men of known Republican principles, is against our idea of right and wrong.

Resolved, That the conduct of Edgar Cowan, the Catiline of Pennsylvania, in voting with the Secession Democracy, so-called, meets with our most hearty condemnation.

Resolved, That the course pursued by the National Union members in Congress in guarding against the admission of delegates from the rebellious States meets with our hearty approbation, and that we approve of the action taken by them to reconstruct the Union on correct principles.

President Johnson has ordered the arrest of a whole batch of officers of the Freedmen's Bureau. They will all be tried as soon as the charges against them can be prepared.—Exchange.

And we are confident it will not take a year and a half to indict, try and sentence the whole batch. It is only the traitors—pigmies in crime compared with these larceny scoundrels—who can't be brought to trial. Not one of these Bureau offenders will be pardoned, either—it is only traitors who are worthy of Executive clemency.

Important Statement—Lincoln and the Rebel Legislature of Virginia.

WASHINGTON, June 14, 1866.

To the Editor of the New York Tribune—SIR: Your Richmond correspondent of the 6th has quoted and commented upon the fact that Lincoln's telegram to General Weitzel, forbidding the assembling of rebel legislators and others in April of last year, has never been published. It is a document of historic interest, both for its subject matter and for the fact that it was the last telegram penned by Lincoln.

Some weeks ago I obtained from Secretary Stanton a copy for my forthcoming political manual of 1866, from the proof-sheets of which I have the pleasure of extracting it:

"OFFICE UNITED STATES MILITARY TELEGRAPH,
WAR DEPARTMENT, WASHINGTON (D. C.),
April 12, 1866.

"Major General Weitzel, Richmond, Virginia. I have just seen Judge Campbell's letter to you of the 7th. He assumes, as appears to me, that I have called the insurgent Legislature of Virginia together as the rightful Legislature of the State to settle all differences with the United States. I have done no such thing. I spoke of them not as a Legislature, but as "the gentlemen who have acted as the Legislature of Virginia in support of the rebellion." I did this on purpose to exclude the assumption that I was recognizing them as a rightful body. I dealt with them as men having power de facto to do a specific thing, to-wit: 'To withdraw the Virginia troops and other support from resistance to the General Government,' for which, in the paper handed by Judge Campbell, I promised a specific equivalent, to-wit: A remission to the people of the State, except in certain cases, the confiscation of their property. I meant this and no more. Inasmuch, however, as Judge Campbell misconstrued this, and is still pressing for an armistice, contrary to the explicit statement of the paper I gave him, and particularly as General Grant has since captured the Virginia troops, so that giving a consideration for their withdrawal is no longer applicable, but my letter to you and the paper to Judge Campbell both be withdrawn or countermanded, and he be notified of it. Do not allow them to assemble, but if any have come, allow them safe return to their homes.' A. LINCOLN."

You correspondent seems to think that it has been intentionally withheld. I am sure that this is an error. Stanton responded to my request, as I have no doubt he would have done to any one else desiring it for publication. Very respectfully, your obedient servant.

EDWARD McPHERSON.

President Johnson has attempted to justify his action in restoring rebels to political power by asserting that Lincoln contemplated doing precisely what he has done. He has said that Lincoln once invited the rebel Legislature of Virginia to assemble, intending and promising to recognize it as the lawful Legislative body of that State. The friends of Johnson, renegade Unionists and Copperheads, have endeavored to reconcile a loyal people to the monstrous doctrines of "my policy," by reiterating this false and slanderous statement about the martyred President. The dispatch published above contains the refutation of these unjust and wickedly false assertions. President Lincoln, with his generous and forgiving nature, would have been lenient, but he would never have forgotten that the rebels were guilty of crime. Neither would he ever have insulted the loyal men of the nation by insisting that actual rebels are fit to be entrusted with the Government, while the only traitors that now exist are to be found among the men of the North who perilled everything for their country and for the rights of man. Johnson is entitled to the credit of the discovery that the rebels of the South are loyal, while the patriots of the North are traitors. The scandalous and infamous allegation is his own, and is therefore a part of "my policy." Lincoln would no more have made it than he would have approved the balance of the "policy" of Johnson.

THE GENUINE KIRB.—The S. F. Tribune, a new San Francisco Daily, at one bit a week, announces its creed as follows:

We prefer the continued rule of Loyalty to unrepentant Treason. The gulf between these two is more than a "courteous difference of opinion."

The fusibility of the rebels to no longer hold out against the National authority is no evidence of a change of heart or change of purpose.

These views constituting "radicalism" in the vocabulary of traitors, Copperheads and doughfaces, the Tribune will be radical.

Official Canvass in Union County.—A Card.

LA GRANDE, July 7th, 1866.

I notice in the Herald of the 30th of June last, a report of a meeting, together with a series of resolutions passed at said meeting held in Summerville in this county. In these resolutions the names of several citizens of this county together with mine, are presented in no very enviable light. The charges made in those resolutions would have passed unnoticed by me, had the resolutions contained the facts in the case, or had the parties making them been as well known elsewhere as here.

I have it from good authority that they were manufactured in this place by a person who has "resolution on the brain," and were carried down to Summerville for adoption.

The first resolution says that the people of Iowa Precinct have been swindled out of their rights by somebody.

The second charges one of the Judges of the election with being a tool for some one, and closes with a distinction between honest men and Democrats, which is as flattering to Democrats as I could wish it. "A guilty conscience needs no condemnation." Honest men and Democrats! What a connection, indeed! Were the people told I Honest men cast with guess what their opinion would be of a man whose politics do not time men who not three years ago were in arms against the Government which they are now so anxious to claim their rights under.

The third resolution condemns another Judge of election, and I think for the same reason.

The fourth wishes to visit upon a Justice of the Peace of this place and myself the condemnation of all American citizens. Now, if they had said "Democrats," I should have considered it a compliment; but the idea of men who, through the last four years, have been rebels and rebel sympathizers, calling upon American citizens to visit condemnation upon my head and upon the gray hairs of a man "whose whom they are unwilling to loose," is an insult to every American citizen as well as to those they seek to condemn.

In the next resolution, with that fulsome flattery so common with reconstructed rebels, they seek to prune one member of the canvassing board. The question now very naturally arises, why do they not mention, either with praise or blame, the name of W. H. Patton, a Democratic Judge of the election held in their precinct? He is the man that the Democracy swear by in that precinct, He is their war horse, their Nestor. The facts are these: that the mention of his name as a Democratic Judge of the election would give the lie to all their base insinuations as to the Judges of the election. They dare not praise him or blame him. If Mr. Lindsay or Mr. Terrell-liger have done any wrong, and done it willfully, where is their Democratic Judge of Election, their great "I am," that he does not expose it and receive the flatteries and adulations of the Great Democracy of Iowa precinct? It is a slander upon the fair fame of

The last resolution is that they shall be published in the Herald and Review. Mr. Editor, without wishing to detract from either of those papers, I must say that I don't believe that either of those papers has published as base a slander as those resolutions contain since the war. Now as to the persons whose names are signed to the resolution. The first is that of Henry Myers, as President. I think that is a forgery, as the said Henry Myers signs his name thus: "Henry his a mark Myers," and for that reason I think some one else wrote his name. Of the next, Henry Rinehart, I have only this to say, that his forte is behind that bar in his little seven by nine drug-cery of his in Summerville, dealing out "Jungle leg," and singing rot-ol songs with "Uncle's veteran." He will live long if his own custom does not kill him. Of the rest of the names that appear, I will only say that "birds of a feather," &c. Of the person who wrote the resolutions for the democracy of Iowa precinct, I will say that if he recovers from a severe attack of the "big head," with which he has been troubled since the election, he may write resolutions about me "or any other man" on condition that he will publish them in such sheets as the Herald and Review.

Now, as to the facts in the case, from a misstatement of which the Herald and Review would like to make capital: The poll books of all the precincts in this county, with the exception of Iowa precinct, were taken to the Clerk's office as the law directs. The poll book of Iowa precinct came in unsealed and without any certificate, both of which, by the laws of Oregon, are particularly required. Upon the back of the poll book was what I suppose was intended to be the oaths of the Judges and clerks of the election—it not being signed by the Judges and clerks of election, although the Jurat says "it was subscribed and sworn to before the person who is said to have administered the oath, and the party who so administered the oath not being an officer empowered to administer oaths without he himself being sworn (he being a Judge of election). Such being the case, the poll books of that precinct were not counted, but the canvass was made and certified to by E. P. Patterson and S. M. Black, as Justices of the Peace, and myself, as County Clerk. S. M. Black, being a Democrat, receives the praises of the Summerville resolutions, whilst Patterson and myself have the "wish of wrath" poured out upon us for doing just what S. M. Black cautioned by signing that certificate of the canvass. The consistency of the resolutions is in keeping with Democracy.

The foregoing are facts in the case. The Judge of the election in that precinct, who on those resolutions denounce, are both young men of good standing, that they are Union men, which in that locality is a crime. Neither had ever before served as a judge of election and if they did not do their whole duty as the law requires, it was a fault of the head and not of the heart, whilst the other judge, as he says, has been judge of election more or less for the last twenty years. Should not the blame, if any, be set down at the right door?

That mean malignant spirit (which would have been whipped out of the Democrats, had they not run away from the rebel army two or three years ago), must now find vent through their white shoots in the Review and Herald in the form of resolutions; "the fools are sometimes confounded with their own folly," and the Summerville resolutions will yet "come home to roost." If Iowa Precinct has been swindled out of their rights, a court can give them justice. Let them appeal to that tribunal, and not let their prejudice, passion and ignorance reckless others without good cause.

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO JULY 13.

Mr. Raymond's Position—Welles Approves the Philadelphia Convention—Rhode Island Democratic State Convention.

NEW YORK, July 13.—The Times' Washington special says, the report of Mr. Raymond's remarks in the papers is a wilful tissue of falsification. It says where he was questioned as to the course of the Times in relation to the Philadelphia convention, he said nothing whatever about any understanding with any body; that none but Union men were to participate in that convention. He didn't admit that he had done wrong and he retracted nothing that he had said or written, had no promises for the future either to himself or to the Times, either in regard to the Philadelphia convention or any other subject.

Secretary Welles has written a letter to Senator Doolittle approving the call for the Philadelphia convention.

The Rhode Island Democratic State Convention is called to meet at Providence on the 2d of August to appoint delegates to the Philadelphia convention.

Congressional.

WASHINGTON, July 13. The Senate passed a joint resolution giving the right of way to the Union Pacific Railroad through military reservations.

Another caucus of the Union members of Congress will be held on Saturday evening.

The House passed the miscellaneous appropriation bill which is the last of the appropriation bills.

Mr. Morrill reported from the committee on ways and means a bill to protect the revenue and for other purposes, which re-enforces the administrative portions of the late tariff bill, and an increased duty on cigars and spirits.

The House adopted a resolution without a vote rebuking Mr. Dawson in his seat which was contested by Mr. Butler.

Monetary and Commercial—Cholera.

NEW YORK, July 13.—The Post's money article says: Loss is doing in government securities. They are a shade lower. Loan market easy. Cotton dull and unchanged. Flour 50c@$1 lower. Corn opened with a shade firmer and closed with free sales at yesterday's prices.

Only one case of Cholera is reported in the city and one in Brooklyn.

The Atlantic Steamship Company have decided to increase their capital stock from $4,000,000 to $8,000,000.

Passengers for San Francisco.

NEW YORK, July 13.—The following is the list of passengers who sailed, July 11th, for Aspinwall and San Francisco. OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 15.—The United States steamer Saginaw, which was recently thoroughly overhauled and provided with new boilers at the Navy yard of Mare Island, preparatory to her departure as an escort to the fleet of the Western Union Telegraph Company's Russian expedition, is now in the harbor and will leave in a few days for the Aleutian Islands and Petropaulski.

Judith W. Rudolph was divorced from Louis Rudolph this morning, and given two-thirds of the common property.

The deaths in this city for the week ending July 14th, numbered 44.

On motion of Judge Campbell, four indictments against Moses Frank, two for forgery and two for obtaining money under false pretences, were this morning dismissed in the county court, the prisoner being now in the State prison, where he was sentenced for five years on conviction of forgery.

Charles and John Duane were arraigned in the 12th District Court before Judge Pratt this morning, to plead to the indictment charging them with the murder of Col. Ross. District Attorney Porter appeared for the people and Hiram Cook for the defense. Mr. Cook, on behalf of John Duane, first made a motion that he be allowed the privilege granted by the statute abolishing the Grand Jury that found the indictment, a privilege that he was deprived of, from the fact that the indictment was found before his case was sent to the county court. Mr. Porter said he would not object to the motion, as it was clearly the right of the prisoner, and the court accordingly appointed Monday next for that purpose, the jury to be in the meantime summoned to appear and be examined by defendant's counsel as to their competency. Mr. Cook then moved on behalf of Chas. Duane that the indictment be quashed on the ground that the grand jury were so biased as to be disqualified to find an indictment.

Mr. Porter said he had no objections to the facts going on the record, but he denied the right of the District Court to review the decision of the County Judge on appeal.

Judge Pratt said that the District Court was not in any sense an appellate court, yet it could in certain cases review proceedings of a County Court. This was a case without precedent in his court, and he would require time to consider the question. Counsel submitted such authorities bearing on the point as they had been able to discover, and the Court announced that it would give its decision to-morrow or next day. The Duanes were thereupon remanded to the county jail.

The Markets.

Flour—Small sales of superfine at $4 75. Very little doing beyond the usual jobbing trade. Superfine bf sks per 196 lbs., $4 75@5 00; qr sks, $5 00@5 25; extra, bf sks, $5 50@5 75; qr sks, $5 50@5 75.

Wheat—Sales on Saturday of 2,400 the new at $1 60, and this morning, 600 sks coast, old, $1 67½ per 100 lbs.

Barley—Market extremely quiet; no sales to-day, prices, however, are without change.

Potatoes—Quoted at 70c@75c per 100 lbs for Missions and Bays.

Gold—Legal Tenders—Mining Stocks.

The telegraph quotes gold in New York on the 13th at 1313@132, and sterling exchange firm at 109@109¾. On Saturday, gold was variously quoted in New York at 132 @132⅝@132⅞.

Brokers here quote legal tenders at 70½ buying, and 71½ selling.

The mining stock market is perhaps little better this morning. Savage advanced $32 50 from last cash sale on the 11th. From the morning Board of Saturday Crown Point shows an advance of $35 00; Ophir, $5 00; Chollar-Potosi, $3 00; Overman, $1 50. Yellow Jacket, on the contrary, shows a decline of $47 50; Hallion, $9 00; and Belcher, $5 00. About $17,000 legal tenders sold at 70½.

MUSIC AND ITS CULTIVATION. The word music is derived from the Greek, meaning muse. It is one of the fine arts, the elements of which are melodious and harmonious sounds. Musical sounds arise from vibrations of the air set in motion by any cause. Palpable examples are in the strings of the violin and piano, and in the tremulous tongue of the organ loft when the deep pedal notes are struck. When these sounds are deep or grave, the vibrations are few; when high or sharp, they are much greater. Thus the lowest notes of the organ give thirty vibrations a second, while the highest affords many thousands. There is no ideal limit to the pitch or extent of sounds, although there is, practically, for the purposes of art, a limit. The most perfect and most expressive of musical instruments is found in the human voice, which, in singing, ranges from a note represented at E flat below the line in the base clef to E flat above the line in the treble clef of the five parallel lines used for modern musical notation. This includes the lowest notes of the masculine voice and the highest in the feminine. There are usually reckoned six divisions of voices, three masculine and three feminine. Though there are exceptions, as in the case of Jenny Lind, who was for years the wonder of the musical world. The first divisions are the bass, bari tone and tenor and the second contralto, mezzo-soprano, and soprano. The scale of instruments are imitated from the human voice. The most comprehensive as to extent are the great organ and piano-forte, these giving all and more of the low and high notes of orchestral instruments. The music of nature suggested that of art—melody and harmony are here both found. Harmony is the combination of two or more notes sung or played at the same moment. Melody is the sequence of single sounds given by a single voice or instrument. Monotony is fatal to a melody, so that a change from one note to another must be constant. Brilliant melodies, the bravura airs of operas especially for the female voice, extend over a wider range than songs for the drawing room or popular use. The latter hardly ever extend beyond eight or ten notes. The popular air of the "Last Rose of Summer," in eight notes and the "Star Spangled Banner" extends only to twelve. The beauty of melody determines the development of the art. The earliest manuscripts which can be made out of European music are about eight hundred years old. The Bible affords us some knowledge of the music of the ancient Hebrews, and while the classics throw some light upon the condition of the art in Greece, it is generally conceded that the Greeks did not understand harmony, and that their lyre of only a few strings merely played the notes of the voice. A treatise on ancient music, by Euclid, is extant, but it throws but little light on the subject. A drawing from a painting in a tomb at Thebes, in Greece, indicates that before Athens was built the Egyptians made harps of many strings. This fact proves the claim of superiority of Egyptian music over Grecian. The number of the strings of the former vary according to different travelers, from thirteen to twenty-one and also that they made an instrument with frets like a guitar. While music and musical skill has advanced among enlightened nations, it remains among the Hindoo, Chinese and Japanese the same as it did a thousand years ago. The Romans were not a musical people, and their art was a copy of the Greek. The organ, unknown to antiquity, established the base of the structure of elaborate composition for instruments. Modern Europe has made wonderful strides in this art. England, for three centuries has been in an advanced condition as regards cathedral and choir music. But the origin of passionate grace and refinement in music is due to Italy. The first introduction of opera was at Florence, growing out of the enthusiasm of the old Greek drama which was always sung. With improvements in dramatic expression, oratorios and masses have been enhanced in value. The oratorio in the United States has been sustained by the enthusiasm of the amateur performers, rather than the solid support of the public. Although this is not exactly complimentary to the taste of an American audience, the recent hearty pecuniary endorsement of the Portland Philharmonic Society at their concert, may be a good example for our Atlantic brethren. As space at present forbids even a sketch of modern composers and artists, we may resume this very interesting subject in some future article. The mind and body are so constituted as to be extremely sensitive to musical vibrations and any facts, no matter how presented, are always fascinating.

BELL RINGERS AND PANORAMA.—The Bell Ringers had a fair audience at Geo Flavo Hall last night. The various pieces performed upon the hollow metallic instruments, had the true ring, and were produced in their best style. As the scene of the Panorama came successively into sight, murmurs of admiration ran through the audience. To the historical reader, or intelligent descendant of the Emerald Isle, this Panorama is a rare treat, and affords their minds with emotions of pleasure and sadness, as they gaze upon minute representations familiar to the traveler and student. Mr. Warwick gave us the inimitable "Ride to Winchester," by Richard Brinsley Sheridan, one of the most gifted men Ireland has ever furnished to the literary world. We are satisfied Mr. Warwick done full justice to his author. Miss Clara's quaint songs were usual, secured the applause of the audience, with a continued call for a repetition. As the price of admission has been reduced to fifty cents the house ought to be crowded. Another change of programme this evening.

LAVA.—In February last, an eruption took place in the volcano, Mauna Loa, Hawaiian Islands, about five or six miles east of the one which occurred in 1843. Eye witnesses says it was grand and beautiful beyond description, the light being seen for hundreds of miles. Col. John McCracken, of the house of McCraken, Merrill & Co., in this city, has received a piece of lava, weighing about one hundred and fifty pounds, which is now in the possession of Lappon & Knowles. This specimen is dark and looks as though it had not undergone such a great degree of heat, as those we have seen before. Any description is gratified in the Sandwich Island Friend, in which the writer tells us of his visit to the crater, and the sublimity of its appearance while burning.

A BEAR STORY.—Some days ago, while the steamboat Cascade, Capt. Wolfe, was on her return trip, and about twenty-two miles this side of the Cascades, an animal was observed to be swimming across the Columbia. The boat was stopped, its armory searched, all the available arms secured, and a general firing commenced. Our friend Ingalls, the purser, being a good shot, used all his ammunition and side arms. After he and the passengers had expended a hundred charges, more or less, the object "petered." Upon being hauled on deck, it proved to be a young black bear, weighing about one hundred and fifty pounds. Now the bare idea that such good marksmen could not make better hits seems ridiculous. We can scarcely bear to think of it, and in future, shall protest against such a bare-faced proceeding.

HOW ABOUT SOME POSTS.—Since laying the Nicolson pavement and widening the sidewalks on First street, the awning posts have not been moved. At present they are an obstruction to pedestrians and unsightly to persons of taste. Who will inaugurate the movement by taking them down and placing them where they belong—on the edge of the walk. Proprietors now have to dodge and not unfrequently collide with them, which does not always improve the condition of their toilet or person. The only advantage we know of in letting them remain, is that the person coming in contact would be very likely to get posted.

CIRCUIT COURT—SHATTUCK, J.—Jury empanneled in case State vs. Ed. Mitchell, testimony of witnesses heard, arguments to be concluded this morning. Multnomah County vs. Heirs D. H. Lowendale, deceased. Decree in accordance with complaint for Lot 4, in Block 55, in the city of Portland. C. W. Snook vs. B. A. Sutherland et al. Decree in accordance with complaint for Lot 5 and 6, in Block 68 in the city of Portland. Stitzel, Sheriff, enjoined and restrained from selling the same by order of writ of execution on judgment against Sutherland.

IMPORTANT SURGICAL OPERATION.—A man by the name of Flora came to this city with a strangulated, Inguinal Hernia, or rupture, on Friday evening last. All attempts to reduce it, failing, it was determined, yesterday, by his physicians to operate, as affording the only hope of relief. Accordingly Dr. Watkins, assisted by Doctors Gilman and Hawthorne, performed the operation. Mr. Flora is at the County Hospital, where he will receive the constant care of Dr. Hawthorne. At last advices he was doing well.

HARD RESULT.—On Saturday night, the house of James Dwyer, (known as "Uncle Jimmy,") was entered, a trunk containing $6,000 broken open and the money stolen. Mr. D. had lately returned from California with this sum and placed it temporarily in a trunk. As this is pretty much all he has in the world the loss has made him nearly frantic. No clue has yet been obtained of the robbers.

TO THE BASIN.—R. R. Thompson, Esq., Vice-President of the O. S. N. Co., and family, left on the Couch yesterday morning for a few weeks sojourn at Shipanon Landing. This is said to be an excellent resort for invalids who have become enfeebled by a protracted residence in the valleys.

PROMISCUOUS COURT.—HOFFMAN, J.—Mary Carr a negress, arrested for stealing a meerschaum pipe, was tried before Judge Hoffman, Saturday. Decision deferred. Michael Shehan, found drunk and lying on the sidewalk, was sentenced to two days in the calaboose.

ARRIVAL OF THE JOHN H. COUCH.—At the steamer John H. Couch, for Astoria, was passing Swan Island yesterday morning, she burst one of her flues in her heater. She came back to the city and after two hours detention in making repairs, proceeded on her way.

Clarke's New Geography.

A New School Geography; forming the third part of Bancroft's Geographical and Historical Series. By Charles Russell Clarke, A. M., Principal of the Boys' Female Seminary of San Francisco. H. H. Bancroft & Co., San Francisco. For sale by S. J. McCormick, Portland.

This book, while intended to afford a general view of the geography of the world, is devoted in large part to the geography of the Pacific group of the United States—a new distinguishable and useful feature in a Common School Geography intended for use in the Pacific States and Territories. The arrangement of the work is different from that of our other School Geographies, in that it begins with the Pacific States. These are described with particularity—a large amount of new information relating to physical geography, climate, commerce, manufactures, &c., being introduced. The book is written in a style at once easy and intelligible, and is well worthy of examination with a view to its introduction into our schools. Nor is it valuable alone as a school book, as it contains much matter relating to this coast, which might be studied with profit by all classes of persons.

A SECRET FOR THE PUBLIC.—We have heard of some Dentists who don't approve of Sozodont. What is their real objection to it? Simply this: it preserves the teeth and avoids interests whisper that the decay of the teeth is their bread and butter. Eminent members of the profession in all parts of the country endorse and recommend it.

STATE ITEMS.

The Brownsville Woolen Factory has begun the manufacture of cloth again.

The wizard Herman is giving exhibitions in the upper part of the valley.

A semi-weekly mail is now carried between Albany and Lancaster. Mail service began July 1st.

Rev. J. F. Damon, Congregational Pastor at Albany, is forth, we learn, to officiate in the services at his church.

It will be seen by reference to our letter from Baker county, that the Indians are again on the campaign in Southeastern Oregon.

The Journal says that some of the Copperheads of Linn county, who lament the election, indignantly denied their connection with the "Old Guard" Society, now make it a boast that they belonged to it.

The Albany Journal says: "The little girl—daughter of Mr. Michael Last—who was so severely burned last week by her clothes catching fire, died on Thursday morning last."

TAKING HEART.—John Forsyth, editor of the Mobile Register, the principal secesh paper in Alabama, has been up Chicago where he has been feasted and fated by the Democracy. He writes to his paper a hopeful account of the prospects of the Confederate and Copperhead alliance. In glowing terms he describes how ardently the Northern wing of the party is devoted to the fortunes of the late rebels. Enthusiastically he writes:

"I almost feel as if I were in 'rebeldom' when I hear those gentleman talk. If possible, they are more zealous and uncompromising in their hostility to radicalism than we are at home. They sustain the President's policy without asking him for office, and advocate an immediate restoration of the Southern States in their former positions and all their rights in the Union."

The Chicago Tribune thus comments on the above observations:

Forsyth was not at all mistaken when he thus spoke of the Copperheads as a part of rebeldom, and affirmed that they were more zealous and uncompromising rebels than the South can produce. The only difference between them and the Southern rebels is that Southern rebels fight for their principles, while, if you believe the Northern Copperheads, they, although sharing the same principles, did all the fighting by which those principles were defeated. To the rebel they say, "Why, my dear sir, I have done far more than you to sustain slavery, secession and the Confederacy." They actually make the rebel ashamed that they did not keep on fighting longer than they did. To the Republican they say, "Avaunt there; stay at home—we furnished the men to conquer the rebels." The fact is, a Copperhead's record, if you take it from himself, depends upon his audience. To a rebel he is more zealous and uncompromising than a rebel himself, and to a Unionist he is the soul of loyalty, and to both he is destitute of conscience or principle.

MILITARY RESOURCES OF AUSTRIA.—The Vienna Ost Deutsche Post says: Austria has at the present moment 800,000 men under arms. This is no idle boast. The present complement of the army exceeds that of its previous war footing by 140,000 men. But this is not the criterion which best shows the military strength of Austria. What astonishes everybody is the rapidity, precision and calm which have prevailed amid these concentrations and armaments. Without having recourse to requisition, or to recruitment exceeding the normal numbers, without any extraordinary movement being perceptible outside the military workshops, this imposing army has been concentrated, arranged, armed and mounted. In the space of a fortnight Austria has procured from the markets of the country the horses required for her cavalry, artillery and wagon train, and has even allowed some of the minor States to purchase and export horses. Whilst in Prussia country gentlemen have been compelled to give up their carriage and saddle horses for the use of the army, and even Ren's equestrian circus has been obliged to furnish its contingent. With us the horse races are proceeding as usual, and private individuals have been put to no inconvenience. Austria possesses three things which make her a great military State; she has men, and horses, and forage for the latter. What Austria has not we well know; but what she really has, and in abundance others seem not to be aware, and will, therefore, now have to learn by experience.

HONORS TO GEN. CASS' MEMORY.—The following is from a Washington dispatch of the 16th ult.:

DEPARTMENT OF STATE, WASHINGTON,
June 16th, 1866.

The President directs the undersigned to perform the painful duty of announcing to the people of the United States that Lewis Cass, distinguished not more for faithful services in varied public trusts than by exalted patriotism at a recent period of political disorder, departed this life at four o'clock yesterday morning. The several executive departments of the Government will cause appropriate honors to be rendered to the memory of the deceased at home and abroad, wherever the national name and authority are acknowledged. WM. H. SEWARD.

GRAIN AT BUFFALO.—The St. Louis Democrat of June 19th, says:

On Wednesday and Thursday last the first grain fleet of the season arrived at Buffalo from the West. One hundred and sixty-one vessels came in during the forty-eight hours mentioned, with 2,609,252 bushels—the largest receipts ever known for the same time at that port. The Express, of that city, says further: "There came also from the opposite direction a crowd of European agents who were engaged in making contracts for the shipment of these vast supplies to tide water." The Buffalo elevators, it appears, are equal to a task of this character, gigantic as it is; for by the next evening it was calculated that the entire amount would be in cars and canal boats on its way to the Atlantic markets.

ARTEMUS WARD ON NAPOLEON'S LIFE OF CAESAR.—I sot up a spell by the kitchen fire readin' Napoleon's Life of Cæsar. What a reckless old cuss he was! Cæsar made it lively for the boys in Gaul, didn't he? He slew one million of citizens, male and female—Gauls and Gauleesses—and then he sold another million of 'em into slavery. He continued this style of things for some time, when he was 'assassinated in Rome by some high-toned Roman gentlemen, led on by Mr. Brutus. When old Bruty inserted his knife into him, Cæsar admitted that he was gone up. His funeral was a great success, the houses bein' crowded to the utmost capacity.

COUGHS AND COLDS ARE often overlooked.—A continuance for any length of time causes irritation of the Lungs or some chronic Throat Disease. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are offered with the fullest confidence in their efficacy, giving almost invariably sure and immediate relief.

Couch Engine Company No. 5.—Look out for your Steam Engine. A Special Meeting of your Company will be held at the Gem Garden on Thursday evening at 8 o'clock. A full attendance is expected to make arrangements to secure your Steam Fire Engine.
By order of the President. R. HOLMAN, Sec'y.

SUPERB CARD PICTURES.—ELLSWORTH & CARDWELL, 69 First Street, have some of the finest specimens of ALBUM CARD PICTURES we have ever seen. We doubt if there is a Gallery on the coast that can show any equal to what we saw executed here the past week. All of their pictures are the theme and admiration of the public at large. Go and see for yourself.

All Persons should test the merits of DR. HOSTETTER'S STOMACH BITTERS. While it is highly palatable as a beverage, it is unequalled as a tonic and invigorator. In the pursuit of fortune at the mines, many persons are exposed to the attacks of complaints of the digestive organs, and of various kinds of fever. It is the very article that has so long been in demand at the mines. It daily use will restore the tone of a deranged stomach, impart fresh vitality to the digestive functions, and cheer the spirits. As the bitters is the safest of all remedies, let the miner who is exposed to hot and dry, wet and cold, be certain to obtain a supply of the genuine Hostetter Bitter, and he will find it a certain safeguard to health. Sold by druggists and dealers everywhere. jy20 HODGE, CALEF, & Co., 97, Front St.

The reason why so many die with Consumption is because they neglect to use the proper remedy in season. S. T.—1860.—X.
Persons of sedentary habits troubled with weakness, lassitude, palpitation of the heart, lack of appetite, distress after eating, torpid liver, constipation, &c., deserve to suffer if they will not try the celebrated
PLANTATION BITTERS,
Which are now recommended by the highest medical authorities, and warranted to produce an immediate beneficial effect. They are exceedingly agreeable, perfectly pure, and must supersede all other tonics where a healthy, gentle stimulant is required.
They purify, strengthen and invigorate.
They create a healthy appetite.
They are an antidote to change of water and diet.
They overcome effects of dissipation and late hours.
They strengthen the system and enliven the mind.
They prevent miasmatic and intermittent fevers.
They purify the breath and acidity of the stomach.
They cure Dyspepsia and Constipation.
They cure Diarrhœa and Cholera Morbus.
They cure Liver Complaint and Nervous Headache.
They make the weak strong, the languid brilliant, and are exhausted nature's great restorer. They are composed of the celebrated Calisaya bark, wintergreen, sassafras, roots and herbs, all preserved in perfectly pure St. Croix rum. For particulars, see circulars and testimonials around each bottle.
Beware of impostors. Examine every bottle. See that it has our private U. S. Stamp unmutilated over the cork, with plantation scene, and our signature on a fine steel plate side label. See that our bottle is not refilled with spurious and deleterious stuff. Any person pretending to sell Plantation Bitters by the gallon or in bulk, is an impostor. Any person imitating this bottle, or selling any other material therein, whether called Plantation Bitters or not, is a criminal under the U. S. Law, and will be so prosecuted by us. We already have our eye on several parties re-filling our bottles, &c., who will succeed in getting themselves into close quarters. The demand for Drake's Plantation Bitters from ladies, clergymen, merchants, &c., is incredible. The simple trial of a bottle is the evidence we present of their worth and superiority. They are sold by all respectable druggists, grocers, physicians, hotels, saloons, steamboats and country stores.

G. VENARD,
CHARTRES COFFEE!
Manufactory Established in June, 1851.
STEAM POWER, NOS. 625 AND 627 FRONT ST.
HAS CONSTANTLY ON HAND GROUND AND ROASTED COFFEE, GREEN COFFEE of the best qualities. CREAM OF TARTAR and SPICES of all sorts.
The undersigned, who has always enjoyed public confidence for the excellent quality of his Coffee, neglects nothing to justify the good name acquired by his productions, in the sale of which daily increases. The acknowledged superiority of his merchandise, which commands here, and in the markets of the interior, a relatively higher price, excites the cupidity of some manufacturers, and every day he sees increasing the number of those who, by counterfeit or imitation of his mark, seek to deceive the public, palming upon them their inferior productions for the genuine G. VENARD CHARTRES COFFEE. This fraud can deceive nobody after a trial, but only adds to the favorable opinion of the consumers, the very flattering though unwilling testimony of the counterfeiters. Nevertheless, buyers should be forewarned, and placed on their guard against this practice.

On the cold gray stones, oh Sea!
And I would that my tongue could utter
The thoughts that arise in me.

O well for the fisherman's boy
That he shouts with his sister at play!
O well for the sailor lad
That he sings in his boat on the bay!

And the stately ships go on
To their haven under the hill;
But O for the touch of a vanished hand,
And the sound of a voice that is still!

At the foot of the crags, oh Sea!
But the tender grace of a day that is dead
Will never come back to me.

Inspection of Steamboats.

The following debate in relation to the steamboat inspection law took place in the Senate on the 15th of June, and will be of interest here. The debate was on the fixing of the salaries of inspectors:

Mr. Williams—I move to strike out, in that part of the proposed amendment which applies to the district of Portland, in Oregon, "$700," and to insert the amount provided in the original bill, "$1,200."

I find that in the proposed amendment salaries of $1,000 and $1,000 are paid to local inspectors in the Atlantic states, where, I am satisfied, the business is not as large as it is at Portland, in Oregon. In addition to that the expenses at Portland, in Oregon, are much larger than they are in places on this side of the continent. I have received communications from the local inspectors of that district, representing to me that an increase in their salaries is absolutely necessary, and I do not see any reason why inspectors at Portland, Oregon, should be reduced to $700, and the local inspector upon the Mississippi river, at some points two or three thousand miles from its mouth, should be paid $2,000, $2,200, or $2,500, when there is no point upon the Mississippi river where the business is half as large as it is at Portland, in Oregon. I therefore move this amendment to the amendment.

Mr. Edmunds—The present amendment of the committee is made up upon a careful examination of the amount of inspection and other work done at each of the local offices at the points named, so that as near as mathematics can reach such a question, every inspector, by the amendment reported from the committee, is paid for what he does in the same ratio that every other inspector is paid for what he does. The present law went into operation in the year 1862, and for the respective periods ending in 1865, 1866, and 1865, tables have been constructed at the Treasury Department showing the number of steam boats inspected, the number of steamboats in operation, the number of steamboats licensed, and the number of pilots and engineers licensed, so as to show the respective amounts of business done at each of these points; and the amendment providing for Portland, Oregon, the sum of $700 is, according to these tables, the fair ratio in proportion to the amount of labor that is done there as compared with all the other places where similar work is done, so that while New York gets a great deal more than Portland, Oregon, does, it is because a much larger proportion of the time of the inspector is required to perform the duties.

Mr. Williams—I do not wish to appear pertinacious about this matter; but it has occurred to my mind that in preparing his amendments, the Senator did not take into consideration the circumstances under which the local inspectors at Portland, in Oregon, are compelled to act. At points upon the Mississippi and Ohio rivers, at Wheeling, for instance, I suppose the local inspector can perform the duties at that place; but the inspector at Portland, in Oregon, inspects some of the steamboats at that city. Then there are the falls of the Willamette, in the Willamette river, that cannot be passed by steamboats, and steamboats are constructed above those falls, and it is necessary for the local inspector to go there and make his inspection. Then there are steamboats on the Columbia river below the cascades. Those are to be inspected at Portland. Then there is another portion of the river between the cascades and the Dalles where other steamboats for the navigation of the Columbia are constructed, and the inspector must go there to examine those steamboats. Then above the Dalles, there is another part of the Columbia river, where boats are constructed, and the inspector living at Portland is compelled to go above the Dalles for the purpose of inspecting those steamboats, and so upon the Snake river and the other branches of the Columbia river. There are two or three portages upon the Columbia river, and upon the branches of the river there are portages, and materials are taken up from Portland to the portions of the river above these portages, and there the boats are constructed, and it is necessary for the inspectors to go there in order to inspect those boats; so that an inspector at Portland, in Oregon, has very much more labor and must necessarily incur much more expense than an inspector living at the city of Wheeling, on the Ohio river, who, as I understand, is not compelled to travel any great distance for the purpose of discharging his duties. I am not, however, particularly advised on the subject; but I know that in Oregon the local inspectors are compelled to travel two or three hundred miles or more for the purpose of performing their duties. In addition to the reasons I assigned before, I think these are sufficient to induce the adoption of the amendment that I have proposed.

Mr. Edmunds—There would be some force in what my friend from Oregon says as to the peripatetic duties of the inspector at Portland, were it not for the fact that all the official expenses of those inspecting gentlemen are paid by the Government—office rent, printing, stationery—everything of that multitudinous number of matter which always get into not only steamboat inspector's bills, but every other public officer's bills and traveling expenses, whatever they may be. They make up their accounts and take those items out of the fees which are paid to them by the steamboat owners and remit the balance, if fortunately there happens to be a balance, to the Government. Now, it may take two or three days more time, possibly, to make this journey than if they were to be inspected at one place, but the increase is so small, and the salary at present is so large in proportion to the whole amount of time required, that with all respect to my friend's observations I think we should be doing injustice to the other inspectors and to the Treasury to agree to the amendment.

The amendment to the amendment was rejected.

THE NATION'S SOUL.—It must not be regarded a mere fancy to affirm that nations have souls. Nor is it to be counted an easy task for a nation to save its soul alive; keep it just and free, and so always omnipotent. Every person's private experience offers testimony to this fact. The struggle with the tempters, poverty, wealth, luxury, lust of power, etc., for the mastery over them, is of long duration, and is made more difficult and perilous with each new, even the most trifling surrender. Nevertheless, a soul every representative nation must have and saves a controlling sentiment—a central principle—a commanding one idea. All of national character is thus formed. There are familiar illustrations from history. The Hebrew soul was dedicated to the affirmation of one God; the Greek soul dashed into its life in the presence of beauty, philosophy, science; the Roman soul was crystallized into a code of law. What is fairly won once is won for all time, is henceforth a permanent factor in the world's character. Failure only is transient. The Hebrew's legacy, the legacy of the Greek and Roman, are imperishable wealth for mankind. Their souls go "marching on." These different nations seem to have had their so decidedly marked nationalities, that they might as a result be able to lay upon the altar of humanity their special gifts, from which should at length be fashioned in rounded completeness human character. Each had its own idea to make immortal. By divine decree it must "hammer away" at that until its work was done. The union of those ideas, thus brought forth by the travail of the nations, must shape the civilization that shall characterize the future. The nineteenth century is the product of all past centuries, increased by itself. So let us say, America inherits the past, and adds herself to it. What, then, of the future? Here is the solution. Have we a purpose broad enough, and high enough, and deep enough to develope the entire manhood of the race? You? Then has the new world a lease of the future to run without end!—The Radical.

RIVER AND HARBOR IMPROVEMENTS.—The following appropriations have been made for the continuation of river and harbor improvements in the various States. We quote from the New York Herald of the 12th ult. New York, $488,600; Michigan, $84,671; Wisconsin, $270,750; Ohio, $245,900; Maine, $225,111; Delaware, $107,410; Illinois, $84,704; Indiana, $5,000; Massachusetts, $13,000; Pennsylvania, $41,961; Maryland, $81,600; Vermont, $20,672; Oregon, $15,000; Connecticut, $4,000. There is also a general appropriation for the improvement of the Western rivers, amounting to $1,526,000.

IN BAD ODOR.—The New York Herald bewails the fact that President Johnson has but one staunch follower among the seven members of the Cabinet. Even Seward, it says, is blind to facts, and with all the other members, save McCulloch, tries to dodge the main question. This is an admission on the part of the Herald, that will not suit the majority of Johnson Democrats, but it is nevertheless true.

Kind Words from a Foreigner.

"The United States During the War" is the title of a book written by Auguste Laugel, and detailing fully and candidly the impressions received from our institutions and national characteristics, and will trials during a visit made to this country in 1864 and 1865. It is one of a new class of books—books upon America by foreign visitors, and yet without bitterness, without sneering and snarling, such as mark a Dickens individually naturalist. The author is a Frenchman, and a genuine democrat, a lover of democracy for its own sake and in the rough sympathy with our institutions. He came to see for himself how republican principles endured the test of time and the friction of opposing parties, and he returned more than ever convinced that the republican form of government is as good in practice as it is inviting in theory. He admires the patriotic ardor with which Americans fought for the unity of their republic, and sees that all the fears of democratic theorists find no realization while the country passes through the fearful ordeal of a civil war. He eulogizes the patience, frankness, simplicity and practicality of our people, and finds reason to believe that the American surpasses all nations in his knowledge of the human heart. As indicative of the spirit of the book and its generous and interesting treatment of the topics taken up we give a single extract from the preface:

"An American is not fond of complaining; he is too proud, and at the same time too clever; he knows that complaints are the cry of weakness; he is always contented with his house, his wife, his children, his horses, his fields, with the schoolmaster he pays, with the member of Congress for whom he has voted, the President to whom he gave his support. If he receives an insult he says nothing to any one; he will treat his enemy as long as he can with an outside politeness, in order not to give him the pleasure of a noisy outbreak and insults. He is a sure and faithful friend, though he does not expect too much from friendship for himself. He has few illusions, but he is happier than we are, for he has never had any, and we suffer in losing ours. From childhood he has looked at the realistic, sharp side of things, without deceitful prisms or false colors; the education given to him does not throw him into life a stranger to everything, and everywhere deceived. The Americans are acquainted with those agonies of the mind's, nurtured on chaste thoughts, cradled in sweet dreams and suddenly brought in contact with a living, cold, crowded world; they never pursue the impossible, and ask nothing but firm will and intelligence. These are the weapons that are early sharpened; they believe that intelligence leads to virtue, and that will alone can attain it. Their morality has been dipped in the muddy river of life, but it only comes out the more invulnerable. There is perhaps something severe in this way of looking at life, in this submission to hard realities, and this divorce from all chimeras; woman fortunately appears in the midst of all this, like ray and sunbeam of poetry; so hard to himself, the American always preserves for her a delicate and subtle tenderness. She is his equal, his joy, his true companion, the pride of his hearth. They sought each other, and chose freely. She did not come with downcast eyes, mute and timid, but with open hand and raised head; she is his ally and counselor, the consoler and inspirer; beautiful, smiling, adorned, you think her frivolous; she smiles on the earth, as says the Persian poet, but a virile education has implanted in her heart a sentiment of duty proud and almost heroic. With her, alone perhaps in the world, the conjugal is stronger than the maternal love. Her children have the future, her husband has only her. Both ask from the latter affection rather than respect. They think they have done enough when they have fitted them to live as they have lived themselves, and have taught them to value independence above all things."

The time of M. Laugel's arrival in this country was September, 1861, and the news which greeted him before he left the Scotia's deck at New York was the fall of Atlanta and General McClellan's nomination for the Presidency. He traveled across our country from Portland to Chicago, Detroit and St. Louis, visited the army of the Potomac in January, 1865, attended the sessions of Congress and mingled freely with our public men at Washington. Nor did he confine himself to those means at getting at a knowledge of our country and our people. He wanted to see how we conducted a presidential campaign, especially as located a one as the one in 1864, and that, too, in time war. He attended the Republican State Convention at Worcester, he was present at campaign meeting of both parties at Boston, and was one of those who witnessed the raising of a McClellan flag at the Water Shops in this city and listened to the speeches of our local democratic orators. The book is interesting and approciative, and the author evidently took pains to see and know for himself what was going on around him. Such books have a good influence abroad, for they gain more readers than could any American written work, and they invite careful and candid study and investigation of our country, its institutions and its resources. And M. Laugel will find many readers here, for we can find no more interesting books than those written upon ourselves by intelligent and liberty loving foreigners.

The Necessity of Making Treason "Odious"

We copy elsewhere from a Cincinnati journal an account of a curious conversation recently held by one of its correspondents with a rebel officer. It seems to us this person's notions show how necessary it is for the future peace of the country to "make treason odious," as the President well said. Here is a man who cannot see the difference between treason and loyalty; or rather who believes, honestly and sincerely we have no doubt, that treason is honorable and loyalty disgraceful and hateful. He does not blame a Massachusetts man for fighting against the South; he does not blame himself, a Southerner, for fighting against the North; the only traitors he knows of are the men who, in the late war, adhered to the Union, against their States, and those he will hate to the end of his life.

Now, political arguments do not reach opinions as those, which are doubtless held by thousands of men in the Southern States. These people believe treason honorable and just, and loyalty the acme of disgrace—just as a Mormon believes polygamy to be moral, or as Murrell, the land pirate, taught his followers that horse-stealing was a meritorious act, or as Bishop Hopkins holds that slavery is righteous.

But, if any latter-day prophet should teach sheep-stealing as an article of religious faith, the law would not hesitate, his belief to the contrary notwithstanding, to put him in prison, the first time he carried his faith into practice; and the community—especially in a wool-growing region—would strongly demand that, no matter how respectable the offenders might be, or how sincerely he believed sheep-stealing to be chief of all the virtues, the thief should serve his term in the state prison: not for the sake of vengeance, but as the best way to make sheep-stealing odious.

Now treason is a crime by law, just as much as sheep-stealing; that it is inculcated as a faith only makes it the more dangerous to the nation. It is as though ministers of the gospel should justify burglary as a religious duty. Because it is attempted to make treason respectable, therefore we ought to be the more stringent in punishing it according to law. If it were universally conceded that treason is wrong and a crime, we could well afford to dismiss Davis, and even to receive him bare into the Senate. But when it is so widely held that treason is honorable, and only loyalty is a crime, it becomes absolutely necessary to make an example; and by bringing at least one traitor to justice, by enforcing the law of the land upon at least one of the ringleaders, to "make treason odious."

"But," exclaim some of the rebel leaders in Virginia, "Davis did no more than we all did; if he deserves hanging we all deserve hanging. You do not hang us; then you ought not to hang him." Our answer to this would be, certainly you all do serve hanging according to the plainest letter and clearest intention of the law. You all committed treason, and your lives are forfeited by your crime. Justice cries out to prepare a gallows for each of you, but mercy pleads that to execute so many would be cruel, and common sense adds that hanging is a very poor use to make of men, unless it is necessary for public ends. Perhaps to make treason odious by hanging one traitor, is all that is just now required.

Certainly, the condition of sentiment in the other States makes it highly necessary to execute the laws thus far we must "make treason odious" in self defense, for traitors are doing their best to make loyalty odious. And while such unfortunate and perilous opinions prevail to so great an extent in the country, it is of the highest importance that we shall maintain rigidly the execution from Congress and from federal officers of all who are tainted with treason. There is a grave danger to the public in any other course. There is danger of such a perversion of opinion, on a most important point of political morals, as would make republican government impossible here as it became in Mexico. We cannot afford to Mexicanize the Union by our tolerance of treason. We must enable it to be understood that treason is a crime, that traitors are criminals, and that both are odious and disgraceful, and justly liable to punishment.—N. Y. Eve. Post.

THE LAST WORDS OF GEN. SCOTT.—About twenty-five minutes before his death, he addressed his hostler, Allen, saying: "James, how is the horse?" "He is well, General." "Take care of Sim James," said the dying hero, and these were the last intelligible words he uttered.

MONUMENTS CROSSING THE ATLANTIC.—Mr. John Bourne, C. E., says, in a letter which has been forwarded to the New York Tribune for publication:

"By letter which I have just received from America, it appears that the monitor Wyandank is a sister ship of the Roanoke, is about to leave their country for England, and may be expected in Portsmouth about the 20th of June next. Fox, the able and energetic assistant secretary of the American navy, is coming over in the vessel which at least shows that he has no doubt of the seaworthy qualities of that kind of craft, although the sides are so low that the deck is only 18 inches above the water. The unpregnable character of the monitors, from the lowness of their sides, and the immense thickness of their armor, has long been wisely known as superficial considerations, have been persistently propagated, in the idea, perhaps, that the public built in the excellence of the European type of war vessels would thus be maintained. These illusions, however, the voyage of the Monadnock round Cape Horn, and the intended voyage of the Monitonomah across the Atlantic, will no doubt do something to dispel, and mechanicians at least will not be slow to recognize the superior power and efficiency of the monitor vessels, which in action, and one of our iron clads would be able to confront for five minutes without the most eminent risk of being sent to the bottom. The officers and crews of the monitors are entitled to the highest praise for the skill and courage with which they have conducted recently of so novel a character over stormy seas and in the hottest fire, and we may all be sure that the naval men of this country will not be slow to appreciate these qualities, and to give their brother laborers a cordial welcome when they arrive.

A WESTERN OBITUARY.—I hange, we are sorry to say, has deceased. He departed this life last monday. Jem was generally considered a good feller. He went forth without a struggle, and died a life. To day we are as pepper grass mighty smart—to morrow we are cut down like a gooseumber of Quogreland. Jem leaves a nice store, which his wife then wants on. His carthews was numerous to behold. Many is the thing we has at his grocery, and we are happy to state to the admiring world that he never cheated, specially in the wait of mackerel which was nice, and smelled sunset, and his surviving wife was the same way. We never sawed him to put sand in his sugger, tho he had a big sand bar in front of his house, nor water in his liquors, though the Ohio river runs past his door. Peace to his remains. He leaves one wife, 7 children, 1 cow, a grocery store and other quadrupeds, to mourn his loss but in the langwidge of the poet, his loss was their eternal gane.

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most reliable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for testing the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sheriff's Sale.

BY virtue of two executions to me directed, issued out of the Circuit Court of Multnomah county, in favor of Lent and March and John C. Carson and Robert Foster, plaintiffs, and against Moses Hurd, defendant, I have this 9th day of July, A. D. 1866, levied on the following described real estate of the said Moses Hurd, in Multnomah county and State of Oregon, known and described as Blocks No. 86 and 97 in the town of East Portland, and on Tuesday the 7th day of August, 1866, between the hours of 9 o'clock A. M. and 4 o'clock P. M., I will expose the same to sale at public auction in front of the Court House door, in Multnomah county, and will sell so much thereof as will satisfy the above executions and costs, amounting to the sum of one hundred dollars in gold coin, and the further sum of sixty three and twenty-seven one-hundredth dollars in currency, with accruing costs.
